Special Friends

Cinderella loves planning parties for her mice friends. She even makes tiny outfits for them to wear!

Birthday Surprise

When it's Prince Charming's birthday, Cinderella always thinks up a special surprise for him.

Forgotten Friends

- 1 Cinderella was planning a grand ball at the palace, with a spectacular fireworks display. Gus and Jaq wanted to help their friend, so they decided to make her a surprise ball gown.

- 2 Prince Charming had a surprise of his own, too! He gave Cinderella a gift. "I wonder what's inside?" thought Gus, as he watched from behind a curtain.

- 3 The gift was a ball gown that once belonged to the Prince's mother. "It's to wear tonight," the Prince told Cinderella. "I would be delighted to!" Cinderella replied.

- 4 Well, even a mouse knows that a princess cannot wear two ball gowns to a ball! So Gus told the other mice what he had seen.

- 5 "Now that Cinderella's a princess, I don't think she needs our help anymore," Gus cried. All the mice agreed that it was time to leave the palace and find a new home.

- 6 While no-one was looking, the mice left the palace. "We're just Cinderella's forgotten friends," said Gus, sadly.

7 Later, Cinderella found the ball gown that the mice had been making for her. "My friends must have been upset when they heard I would wear the Queen's dress to the ball," she said.

8 Cinderella searched the whole palace for her mouse friends. She eventually found them out in the muddy gardens. "Please don't go," Cinderella called to them.

9 "You don't need our help anymore," Gus said. "You don't have friends just because you need their help," Cinderella replied. "You treasure them because you adore them."

10 Cinderella insisted that the mice stay at the palace and she invited them to the ball. She even made new clothes for them to wear.

11 The ball began with a bang as fireworks lit up the sky. The guests gasped as they watched the spectacular display.

12 The mice could hardly believe their eyes when the fireworks exploded into giant mouse shapes! "Cinderella planned the fireworks right from the start," Gus giggled. "She never forgot her friends!"

The Party Picture

Find out how Pascal cheers his friend up with a very special party.

One day, in her tower, Rapunzel was feeling lonely. That morning, she'd already played the guitar, done some sewing and baked a batch of cookies. She didn't know what else to do.

"I wish I had lots of friends," she said to herself, with a sigh. "Then I could have wonderful parties and I'd never have to be lonely again."

Pascal was watching from a distance. He didn't like to see his friend looking so sad, so he decided to cheer her up.

First, Pascal did a little dance, but Rapunzel didn't even smile.

Next, he tried hiding behind a paint pot and jumping out, but that didn't cheer up Rapunzel either.

Pascal looked at the paint pot and wondered what to do. Then, suddenly, it gave him a brilliant idea. He used his tail to nudge the paint pot towards Rapunzel.

Rapunzel noticed what her friend was doing and sighed. "I don't feel like painting today, Pascal," she said. But Pascal wasn't about to give up. He picked up a paintbrush and dropped it at Rapunzel's feet.

Rapunzel still didn't understand what Pascal was trying to tell her. Pascal was getting impatient, but he decided to try one more time. He pointed towards the wall where Rapunzel had painted lots of scenes of the outside world. Then, he mimed people chatting, dancing and having lots of fun.

Suddenly, Rapunzel understood. Pascal wanted her to paint a picture of a party! "What a great idea!" she told her smart, little friend.

Rapunzel quickly got to work. She painted a busy scene with lots of happy people. She added a band playing musical instruments. There were flowers, decorations and lots of yummy party food, too.

By the time she had finished, Rapunzel was smiling. Whenever she felt lonely again, she'd just look at her party picture and it would cheer her up.

"Thank you, Pascal," Rapunzel said. "You may be my only friend, but you are the best friend in the whole wide world!"

The Forest Princess

*Read this lovely tale about
Snow White and her forest friends.*

One sunny day, Snow White decided to go for a walk in the forest. As she skipped along merrily, she suddenly noticed a beautiful tiara hanging from a tree.

The tiara was made from twigs and flowers. As Snow White took it from the tree, she noticed it had something written on it. "Property of the Forest Princess," Snow White read.

"Oh dear," thought Snow White. "This Forest Princess must have lost her tiara. I need to find her and return it."

So, Snow White headed to the dwarfs' cottage to ask them if they knew where the forest princess lived. But the dwarfs had never heard of her.

Next, Snow White went to the palace to ask the Prince about the Forest Princess. But the Prince didn't know who she was either.

Snow White decided to make a poster to hang in the forest with a drawing of the tiara on it. "Hopefully the Forest Princess will see it," she said.

All of a sudden, a naughty squirrel grabbed the tiara out of Snow White's hand and scampered off. "Oh, no!" cried Snow White. "How will the Forest Princess get her tiara back now?"

As Snow White said these words, some birds flew down and gently placed the tiara on her head.

Suddenly, all of the forest creatures appeared and Snow White realised that she was the Forest Princess! The tiara was the forest's thank you gift to her for taking care of it so well.

Snow White was very touched by the gesture. "Seeing as everyone is here and I have a new tiara to wear, we should have a celebration," she told her friends.

So Snow White and the forest creatures danced and sang. Everyone had a wonderful time, especially the new Forest Princess!
